Dive into genealogy without reservations — drop into KFPL’s upcoming sessions

Learn about the past through genealogy with the Kingston Frontenac Public Library (KFPL). Starting from October 10 and running through November 23, join Anne Hall, Local History and Heritage Librarian, for weekly drop-in sessions exploring genealogical heritage.

Along with members of the Kingston Branch of Ontario Ancestors (formerly the Ontario Genealogical Society), Hall will help answer questions and offer assistance.

No registration is necessary, but for those working on a particular angle like Indigenous heritage, military service, passenger lists, land grants or cemetery records, an advance email to ahall@kfpl.ca may result in specialized help.

Each session takes place from 1-3 p.m. on the following dates:

- October 10: Central Branch, 2nd Floor, Local History Room
- October 19: Isabel Turner Branch, Cataraqui Room
- October 24: Central Branch, 2nd Floor, Local History Room
- November 2: Isabel Turner Branch, Gates Room
- November 7: Central Branch, 2nd Floor, Local History Room
- November 23: Isabel Turner Branch, Gates Room

"No matter where your family's journey may have taken them, these sessions provide a golden opportunity to bring your laptop or tablet and learn about your ancestors, explore research sources and share strategies with others with the same passion for genealogy," said Hall.
