FOR RELEASE NOVEMBER 9, 2022

Trace your family tree with expert help

Kingston Frontenac Public Library's Genealogy One-on-One Sessions continue through November and into December.

There are four opportunities to work on your family tree or other genealogy research. These online sessions will be held at 3:15 p.m. each Wednesday on Zoom from November 23 through December 14. Registrants will be emailed the link immediately upon registration.

Anne Hall, KFPL's Local History Librarian, will help registrants answer questions and offer tips and suggestions.

"Be ready to provide details about your question or problem when registering," Hall said.

Registration for each weekly session will close one week ahead of the session. Please — only one session per person. A KFPL card is required to register, and those without a card can sign up online at register.kfpl.ca.

Registration opens at 9 a.m. on November 12, online at ONE of the following links or phone (613) 549-8888:
